IT Field Engineer (Chestnut Hill, MA)

CHR seeks a motivated and organized professional to serve as CHR's IT Field Engineer. The position is responsible for researching, planning and implementing new technology hardware, software and services as well as maintaining and optimizing our current IT and A/V infrastructure. This unique and challenging opportunity offers the right individual the opportunity to put their information technology and business knowledge and experience to work to help our company leverage our IT investments and meet our company objectives.

An initial focus for this position includes broadening and supporting CHR's use of audiovisual technologies to improve the quality of life at CHR's properties, as well as surveillance/entry systems, theaters and related technologies. The right candidate will have a thorough understanding of these technologies.

The right candidate will have a demonstrated track record in collaborating with vendors and company stakeholders to achieve results. The right candidate will have a bachelor's degree in Information Systems or similar degree or relevant experience, a solid background in network and helpdesk administration, demonstrated knowledge in project management as well as excellent organizational and communication skills.

All job offers contingent upon satisfactory background check.
